

Benefits of Renting a Captive Cell

Structures

Captive Insurance Company: An insurance or reinsurance company formed primarily to insure its owner(s) and affiliated companies.

Rent-A-Captive or Protected Cell Captive: A client “rents” a segregated cell within a sponsored captive facility, thereby receiving many of the benefits of a captive without the cost and capital commitment required of a wholly owned captive. Clients without a captive can experience many of its benefits through participation in AIG’s own captive cell facilities in Vermont and Bermuda.

Reasons to Consider a Cell vs. an Owned Captive

- Cost effective alternative to captive ownership:
 - Quick formation with minimal start-up costs
 - No audit or license fees (all borne by the sponsor)
 - Annual operating expenses are significantly less for a cell than for an owned captive
- May be a stepping stone to setting up an owned captive, as cells are easily converted into standalone captives
- Enables participants to realize the benefits of a captive, such as sharing in underwriting profits, without the full operating costs and commitment of an owned captive

- No board or directors requirement and less commitment of management time
- Exit strategy of a cell quicker and easier than winding down an owned captive

Key Features of AIG’s Sponsored Cell Captives

- Client signs a participation agreement defining its rights and obligations with respect to the cell
- Client posts required collateral to AIG in support of the cell’s obligations
- Premiums and losses are ceded to the client’s cell in the AIG-sponsored cell facility
- The assets of an individual cell are legally segregated from and cannot be used to meet the liabilities of any other cell
- All regulatory requirements and administrative tasks are carried out by AIG’s Captive Management Services team
- Premium plus investment income, less claims and expenses = profit to the cell participant
